I agree. Was kidding about Gordon. If we had more effective ELI, this could be a relatively easy decision. Hank

Will do. Paul is likely a good short-term pick. Maybe we wait to see if we get someone hired to name someone?

I don't think Gordon could be an interim anywhere. He does not have the background and would not be taken seriously.

Annie needs the experience. Not sure GCSU or Macon is ideal for her, may be too big, especially Macon with all going on there. But she needs an interim experience. She needs a role like that.

Will keep thinking. The problem remains with all campuses so slim it really leaves a hole to pull someone out. I have wondered about one of the uga deans or associate provosts as interim at uga and/or macon. But still thinking.

I have spoken with Stas to advise him that he should plan to return to GGC because Dan needs him for the new academic year. He suggested that should we need another interim until the new president transitions into the job that Dr. Paul Jones would do an excellent job. We need to keep in mind that the provost there is moving to be next president at University of South Carolina-Aiken. Gordon Harrison wants to be an interim; Annie Hunt Burriss could be an interim. Keep thinking. Hank

For your information only, I am a reference for Todd Diacon who also has become one of the CAO semifinalists. I was called today by the Chair of the Search Committee for Provost at Kent State University in my role as one of his references. Todd has become one of the campus finalists for Provost and interviewed recently. The chair reported that the KSU President is very high on Todd, and he expects a job offer will be made to him in the near future.

All:

I just talked interactively with Todd and I believe that he will not make any decision regarding Kent State until he has had the opportunity to visit with Hank and USG on Wednesday and Thursday. He will, though, have to make a decision pretty quickly after that visit...he just doesn't think he can lead the Kent State folks on beyond that time.
